

This image shows a page from a Persian technical journal. The page is filled with dense Persian text arranged in multiple columns. At the bottom right corner, there are three separate diagrams, each consisting of a rectangular frame with internal components and connecting lines. The first diagram contains a diamond shape with a circle inside, the second contains a circle with a cross inside, and the third contains a square with a circle inside.

