

(2)

第164頁

This image shows a single page from a Persian-language newspaper. The page is filled with dense columns of text arranged in a grid-like structure. Interspersed among the text are several small, rectangular diagrams or tables, likely representing data or specific information. The overall layout is typical of a news publication's layout, with multiple stories and data points presented in a structured format.

